First place finisher, Byron Lane, an alumnus of Suffolk County Community College, class of 1988, commented, "The education I received at Suffolk was outstanding. My professors loved to teach and cared about their students. Suffolk was a wonderful place to go to college, and I recommend it without reservation. After graduation, I continued my education at Stony Brook and Hofstra and I am now an elementary school math and data specialist in the Harborfields School District. I love going to work every day, and my time at SCCC was the foundation for both my educational and real-world journey."

More than 65 runners participated in the 50K run, which at 31.07 miles qualifies as "ultra-marathoning" or "ultra-running", the sport of long distance running. The race attracted participants from Long Island and the New York Metro area; participants' ages ranged from the early 20's to the late 70's. Runners followed a course charted along scenic terrain between the College's Eastern Campus in Riverhead, to its Ammerman Campus in Selden.
